If you are a person with a disability, have a desire to work, and are currently a client or applicant for services under the Rehabilitation Act, contact CAP if:

- You are denied the right to apply for rehabilitation services;
- You are found ineligible for services, and you believe that you should be receiving those services;
- You and your vocational counselor cannot agree upon your vocational goal or Individual Plan for Employment;
- You disagree with a rehabilitation program, project or facility about the services that are being provided to you;
- You disagree with your case closure by a rehabilitation service provider;
- You disagree with the denial of a post-employment service; or
- You do not understand your rights or the services available to you under the Rehabilitation Act.
